Edorium Journal of Neurosurgery was born! What to expect: An ordinary child or a prodigy?

Yavor Enchev

The Edorium Journal of Neurosurgery represents a newborn in the international neurosurgical family.

Its appearance was not proclaimed by fanfaronade and wide publicity...

Clearly, it is not the first child in this haughty, pretentious, ambitious and demanding family these days. However, it is not an undesired one.

I believe that every newborn has the right to exist, to grow and to develop.

As a newborn it is dependent on its parents and on its environment. Its first steps would be impossible without their support.

Edorium Journal of Neurosurgery could be an ordinary child or a prodigy, in the beginning no one knows...

We must give him a chance to do its best.

To start to store knowledge, to shape character and to build opinion...

To share ideas, to propose changes and to debate the reality...

The birthday is always a reason for celebration and for wishes.

We would like to wish it long life full of interesting and valuable content, and memorable acquaintances with numerous neurosurgeons, neurologists and neuroscientists from all over the world.

The childhood is an exciting and unforgettable period- lets be together with Edorium Journal of Neurosurgery.

It is looking for support to make its first steps in the amazing scientific world!

Let lend it a hand and start submitting manuscripts to it!

And we will witness, why not, the childhood of a prodigy!

The young team of Edorium Journal of Neurosurgery is full of curiosity, enthusiasm and optimism for the future!

Be part of this magic!

Let's grow together!

The journal would like to become the tribune of the persevering neuroscientific minds looking for something new for the welfare of our patients!
